

I have listened to K-LOVE for 4 years now and can't imagine life without the uplifting, positive music K-LOVE provides. I believe the community of Tucson and the Nation benefits greatly from K-LOVE as it provides a means to help people get in touch with God, each other and offers resources that helps them, their families and communities in a variety of ways. There are always positive messages and outreach resources for our youth which enables our future society to be more giving and loving towards each other. I would love to have more national and regional broadcasting as it exposes a community to the world rather than just their local flavor of news and culture. K-LOVE was especially soothing to me after 9/11 when all you hear about is terrorism, war and death, K-LOVE offers news about those things but also gives you ways to cope. Thier whole programming and their DJ's are all about family, community, loving each other and the world we inhabit and most importantly worshipping the maker of our world, God. Without K-LOVE we would just be another community that is scared and treats each other with indifference. The world needs K-LOVE now more than ever. Pulling K-LOVE is taking away a choice many people have made to listen to K-LOVE - taking it away is not only undemocratic, but it is taking away people's rights to listen to something they love and helps get them through this difficut life we are living now.

Respectfully,

Dawn Crews
